It consists of a central vertical line representing the subject, with four horizontal lines branching out to the left and right, representing the parents. These lines then branch out again to represent the grandparents, and so on, forming a tree structure. The chart is designed to be filled out with the names and details of the dog's ancestors.

The chart is divided into four generations, with the subject at the top and the ancestors branching out downwards. The chart is designed to be filled out with the names and details of the dog's ancestors.
