

Female

A blank template for a dichotomous key. It features a central vertical line that splits into two main horizontal branches. Each of these branches further divides into two sub-branches, creating a total of four paths. Each path is represented by a horizontal line that can be used for text. The structure is symmetrical and designed for step-by-step classification.