

Llewellyn Setter
Female

A blank template for a dichotomous key. It features a central vertical line that splits into two main horizontal branches. Each of these branches further divides into two more horizontal branches, creating a total of eight terminal points for text. The structure is symmetrical and designed for step-by-step classification.