

Wirehaired Pointing Griffon
Female

A blank template for a dichotomous key. It features a central vertical line that splits into two main horizontal branches. Each of these branches further divides into two sub-branches, creating a total of four paths. Each path is represented by a horizontal line that can be used to write a question or statement. The structure is symmetrical and designed to guide the user through a series of choices to identify an organism.