

Weimaraner
MaleA blank template for a dichotomous key. It features a central vertical line that splits into two main horizontal branches. Each of these branches further divides into two smaller horizontal branches, creating a tree-like structure. The lines are black and the background is white, providing a clear guide for writing classification criteria and organism names.