

GRNITECH PR MINKLERS KANSAS ROCK

A blank template for a dichotomous key. The structure consists of a central vertical line that splits into two main horizontal branches. Each of these branches further splits into two more horizontal branches, and so on, creating a total of 16 potential paths for classification. The template is designed to be filled out with specific characteristics and choices for identifying different groups of organisms.